

Buttards Jan 26 1857

In dear Sir I believe I have been able to get without the assistance of my sheet some a or just a paper with tolerable accuracy the substance of which I send as an extract. I think it has the merit of being short, whether it be like my fair friend the late Mudge of Oxford's sermon which Canning is free said was also tedious. Their work judge.
I shall be as true as Trevelyan unless the influence which has hitherto not improved me with its notice serves me for a time from the un-injection of politics & railroads.
